

THE STORY OF ST. PATRICK'S PARISH AND COMMUNITY, LEICESTER 1820 -2020

This exciting and informative account of the early settlement of the Catholic Irish in Leicester is a vibrant story. It is part of the very real heritage of the Irish in Leicester, based on 30 years of research and dozens of interviews. It contains hundreds of photos. There are chapters on the initial Irish settlement and the growth of the community; education, especially at St Patrick's school, including the still standing School Chapel in Royal East Street. The two RC Secondary schools, Corpus Christi and English Martyrs are included and all the priests and many of the people across the centuries. Why did the Irish come here, where did they live, what jobs did they do, both men and women. The new school of 1854, new parish of 1873 and new church in 1959, who was St Patrick and what is his legacy today? Women's roles, nurses Nuns, Pupils, Teachers, Sports teams, Inspectors reports and lots more. Many of you appear in the numerous photos. The more recent Asian, European, Afro Caribbean members of the parish are also represented.
